1 (Case called)

2 MR. ARAVIND: Good afternoon, your Honor. Santosh
3 Aravind for the government. With me at counsel table is Katie 4 Coulson, an intern with our office.

5 THE COURT: Good afternoon, Mr. Aravind.

6 MS. BENNETT: Good afternoon, your Honor. Megan 7 Bennett on behalf of Samuel Torres. Mr. Torres is seated to my 8 right.

9 THE COURT: Good afternoon, Ms. Bennett.

10 I note the presence of defendant Samuel Torres at 11 counsel table.12 This matter is on for sentencing. Are the parties 13 ready to proceed?

14 MR. ARAVIND: Yes, your Honor.

15 MS. BENNETT: Yes, your Honor.

16 THE COURT: Ms. Bennett have you reviewed with your 17 client the presentence investigation report?

18 MS. BENNETT: Yes, your Honor, we reviewed it.

19 THE COURT: Are there any factual matters set forth in 20 the report that you want modification or correction?21 MS. BENNETT: Yes, as I outlined in the sentencing 22 submission, there are a number of paragraphs in the narrative
23 that I wouldn't say warrant correction, but that we have asked 24 be eliminated from the narrative because we don't believe that 25 they are relevant for purposes of the sentencing and they will

e5u2tors kjc

1 bear on both the designation and security classification
2 decisions made by the Bureau of Prisons. Those are paragraphs 3 15 through 23, 26, 27 through 29, 31 through 33 and 69 through 4 71.

5 Does the court wish to hear anything from defense on 6 those paragraphs beyond what's set forth in the sentencing 7 submission?

8 THE COURT: Mr. Aravind.

9 MR. ARAVIND: Your Honor, we would oppose that 10 application. The offense conduct is a conduct of the 11 defendant, as well as other members of the narcotics 12 conspiracy. We believe it is appropriate. It is done in all 13 these types of larger cases to have a lengthy offense conduct 14 that sets forth how the conspiracy exists, what the individual 15 players are, and then specific paragraphs that deal with 16 particular defendants like Mr. Torres. So we believe it is 17 entirely appropriate to have that entire offense conduct as 18 part of the PSR, and we would oppose the defense application.

19 MS. BENNETT: In response to that, I would note that 20 Samuel Torres pled guilty to participating in a conspiracy to 21 distribute 280 grams or more of crack cocaine. Many of the 22 codefendants were charged and entered pleas of guilty to drug 23 conspiracies involving other substances with which Mr. Torres
24 was not alleged to have had any participation. To the extent 25 that paragraph 15 for example includes factual allegations

e5u2tors kjc

1 regarding the powder cocaine and the oxycodone and the 2 marijuana conspiracy, as do paragraphs 15 and 17, those have no 3 bearing on the conspiracy or those factual allegations within 4 those paragraphs don't have a bearing on the conspiracy to 5 which Mr. Torres has entered a plea of guilty. The paragraphs 6 concerning the arrests of the codefendants, I understand the 7 government likes to include more rather than less, but I don't 8 see how those arrests have any relevance to the underlying 9 criminal conspiracy to which Mr. Torres has entered a plea of 10 guilty. And I don't see any sentencing purpose here. It 11 simply embellishes and enlarges the presentence report with no
12 legitimate purpose.

13 MR. ARAVIND: Your Honor, I think there is certainly a 14 legitimate purpose.

15 THE COURT: I do, too.

16 Ms. Bennett, this court disagrees with you.
17 Paragraphs 15 to 23 and 26 provide a descriptive narrative of 18 coconspirator conduct that provides background and context 19 necessary in evaluating the nature of the offense; and 20 paragraphs 27 through 29 and 31 through 33 simply detail
21 codefendant arrests and are relevant. Finally, I have reviewed 22 your submission, so your objection to paragraphs 69 through 71, 23 setting forth additional arrests of Torres, at least one of 24 which appears may still be pending, is also denied. Those are 25 relevant matters for the court to consider.

e5u2tors kjc

1 MS. BENNETT: If we could move on to the criminal 2 history calculation.

3 THE COURT: Sure. Before we do, I just want to make 4 certain from the government, are there any factual matters in 5 the presentence report that the government believes warrant 6 modification or correction?

7 MR. ARAVIND: No, your Honor.

8 THE COURT: All right. You may proceed to the 9 criminal history issue.

10 MS. BENNETT: Moving on to the criminal history
11 calculation as set forth in both the defense sentencing
12 submission and the government's response, the PSR
13 characterization of the June 29, 2004 juvenile delinquency
14 adjudication, we object to the inclusion of the two points
15 attributed to that adjudication. There are no records
16 available at the time that the parties entered into the plea
17 agreement, it wasn't clear whether or not we would have access 18 to additional information that might provide support for 19 considering that delinquency for purposes of the criminal 20 history calculation. There are no records available.

21 Mr. Torres spent time in a reformatory. The second Circuit has 22 stated that when considering youthful or juvenile 23 adjudications, the sentencing court should look at the facts
24 underlying that adjudication; and, in the absence of any facts 25 suggesting or telling us what exactly was the basis for the

e5u2tors kjc

1 delinquency, I would argue -- I do argue that there is not a 2 sufficient basis for awarding, sort of a preponderance of the 3 evidence for which those two points should be added to 4 Mr. Torres's criminal history calculation.

5 I have a couple other points on criminal history 6 calculation overall. Do you want me to address those?

7 THE COURT: Let's focus on this one first.

8 Do you have any information that would support the 9 argument that this adjudication did not constitute a 10 "confinement."

11 MS. BENNETT: Do I have any support about that?

12 THE COURT: Yes.

13 MS. BENNETT: I have the information that Mr. Torres 14 was in a group home setting; that he had been removed from his 15 mother's residence and was placed in a reformatory environment.
16 But that is primarily -- I tried to get the records from the 17 New York State -- the department that is responsible for 18 maintaining those facilities and was not able to get them, so I 19 don't have additional factual information beyond what is set 20 forth in the presentence investigation report.

21 THE COURT: Was it a prison-like setting, a detention 22 facility?

23 MS. BENNETT: I don't believe it was, but I don't want 24 to overstate from the conversations that we had with the 25 probation officer who conducted the presentence investigation

e5u2tors kjc

1 report. It sounded like over the period of those 18 months it
2 was a variety of different settings, some of which were more 3 secure than others, but were generally Samuel was moved among 4 those facilities, not because of issues with his behavior, but 5 because of his age, that he was at risk in a more secure 6 facility. He was moved to a less secure facility, but he was 7 going to school, he was being provided with extracurricular 8 activities, his family was able to visit him openly, so I don't 9 know --

10 THE COURT: That would be true in any setting.

11 MS. BENNETT: I don't want to overstate, but I -- I 12 don't even know where he was. I could not get that information 13 from the state.

14 THE COURT: Was he sent there because of the family
15 situation or because of his robbery I adjudication?

16 MS. BENNETT: I think it was a combination of -- I 17 think it was primarily driven by the arrest that was 18 adjudicated in family court.

19 THE COURT: The first degree robbery adjudication.

20 MS. BENNETT: Correct. Well, he was charged with the 21 first degree robbery. I don't even know what the ultimate 22 adjudication was on that, because the records are sealed and I 23 haven't been able to get them.

24 THE COURT: He had an 18-month sentence, didn't he?

25 MS. BENNETT: He got sent to a reformatory. At this

e5u2tors kjc

1 point he had been moved from a regular classroom to a special 2 education classroom because of emotional problems that were 3 connected with the situation at home. He had been acting out 4 not in a violent way, but in a sufficiently disruptive way in 5 the school environment that I understand there was a file as to 6 his behavior. There were problems with his home environment 7 and that, again, we are speculating, because I don't have 8 access to the record. It is sealed. I can't get any 9 information from the state about the reformatory sentence. But 10 in light of the confluence of factors that were surrounding him 11 at that point in his life, I can't say, I wouldn't feel 12 comfortable saying that he got an 18-month sentence.

13 THE COURT: Mr. Aravind, what's the government's 14 position?

15 MR. ARAVIND: Your Honor, I think we set our position 16 in our sentencing submission. Although we gave two points for 17 this juvenile adjudication as part of the plea agreement and 18 that's what the parties stipulated to, upon further review and 19 looking at the cases, given the fact that he was sentenced to 20 reformatory, given the fact that he was 13 years old, given the 21 fact that he was sentenced in Bronx family court as opposed to 22 an adult court --

23 THE COURT: That's only because he was 13.

24 MR. ARAVIND: That is correct.

25 THE COURT: The conviction is first degree robbery.

e5u2tors kjc

1                   MR. ARAVIND: And it is a serious conviction. There
2 is no doubt about that. The case law here is not entirely 3 clear. The Driscoll case talks about looking for a variety of 4 factors in determining whether one of these convictions
5 qualifies an adult conviction.

6                   THE COURT: Like the nature of the offense.

7                   MR. ARAVIND: Correct.

8                   THE COURT: And term of confinement, right?

9                   MR. ARAVIND: That's exactly correct, your Honor. I 10 think there are certain factors that weigh in favor of treating 11 this as an adult conviction. There are also other factors that 12 do not. In the absence of --

13                  THE COURT: Which are the factors that do not?

14                  MR. ARAVIND: The factor of the defendant's age and 15 that he was sentenced to a reformatory institution as opposed 16 to an adult penal institution -- although, again, that's a 17 result of his age -- are factors that weigh in favor of not 18 treating this as an adult conviction. Again, we suffer from 19 the same problem that Ms. Bennett does, that we just don't have 20 the records that would show exactly what the conditions of 21 confinement were at that particular facility or what he did 22 precisely in terms of the offense conduct to receive that 23 adjudication. So in light of those factors, your Honor, the 24 government has taken the position that that particular 25 conviction should not be assessed, the two points for criminal

e5u2tors kjc

1 history category.

2 THE COURT: Given this court's lack of specific 3 information about the precise nature of the facilities that the 4 defendant was housed in, I am going to decline to grant the two 5 points here. I do so because the defendant and the government 6 are in agreement. But I would note that a plain reading of 7 Section 2A1.2(d)(2)(A) certainly suggests that a two-level 8 enhancement could be warranted because of the serious nature of 9 the offense and the length of term of confinement. But I don't 10 have enough information about the nature of that lengthy 11 confinement to conclude that it would actually fall as a 12 "confinement," and I put that word in quotes, under 13 4A1.26789(d)(2)(A).

14 Next issue.

15 MS. BENNETT: The next issue the defense raised had to 16 do with the most recent state court conviction for possession 17 of a weapon. I don't want to belabor that point. I think I 18 made our argument in the papers. If the court is inclined to 19 entertain it, I would be happy to address it further, but we 20 ask that it be considered relevant conduct. It fell within the 21 period of the conspiracy, and he was described as having been 22 acting as a lookout at the time that he was arrested, but 23 that's about all I have to say on that point.

24 THE COURT: Anything further from the government on 25 that?

e5u2tors kjc

1                   MR. ARAVIND: No. We oppose that, your Honor. I had 2 a conversation with the ADA who is handling that case. We 3 believe that there is no real connection, or at least none
4 that's been presented to us, in terms of that particular 5 offense and the narcotics conspiracy of which he is charged 6 here. So we don't believe it is relevant conduct, and he 7 should receive the points for that conviction.

8                   THE COURT: This court agrees with the government and 9 probation's assessment of the three criminal history points for 10 the defendant's recent possession of a weapon conviction for 11 which he is currently serving three to six years, so I decline 12 to grant that reduction to defendant.

13                  MS. BENNETT: I think that's all that we have for 14 challenges to the presentencing investigation report.

15                  THE COURT: So for the sake of the record, before you 16 make your arguments, the defendant's criminal history category 17 will be computed to be a IV not, as set forth in the 18 presentence report, a V; and physically we will make the 19 physical change in the presentence report.

20                  MS. BENNETT: Thank you, your Honor.

21                  THE COURT: With that, having dealt with the 22 guidelines, would you like to be heard, Ms. Bennett?

23                  MS. BENNETT: Yes, your Honor.

24                  First I would like to just point out for the court and 25 for the record that in the audience are Mr. Torres' mother,

e5u2tors kjc

1 Joanna Ortiz; his sister, Abigail; his cousin, Peter; and a 2 number of family friends who have come today to support him and 3 who will be ready to support him upon his release whenever that 4 is.

5 I would like to start by addressing Mr. Torres's 6 history and characteristics.

7 I don't think there is any dispute that the nature of 8 the charges here are serious and that is reflected certainly in 9 the statutory mandatory minimum that is attached to the count 10 to which Mr. Torres has entered a plea of guilty.

11 With respect to that, I would note only that 12 Mr. Torres's conduct, I believe, in connection with that 13 conspiracy did end some period before his arrest. And I don't 14 want to suggest that he was, by any stretch, any kind of 15 choirboy, but there was a period of time between the end of 16 that conspiracy and his arrest when he showed himself at least 17 not to be participating in the drug conspiracy. That said, we 18 acknowledge how serious the nature of these charges are.

19 Moving on to Mr. Torres's history and background, as 20 the court knows, from the sentencing submission, Mr. Torres was 21 raised primarily by his mother Joanna, along with his brother 22 Nelson, and his sister Abigail.

23 When Samuel was a young boy, his mother became 24 involved with a gentleman who, while a supportive partner, 25 inflicted great emotional and physical harm on Mr. Torres.

e5u2tors kjc

1 Around the time that he turned 13, I think you can see from his 2 criminal history record, he began taking it out partly, no 3 doubt, because of the time in his life and the changes that any 4 young person experiences on the brink of adolescence, but also, 5 no doubt, heightened by the nature of the circumstance he was 6 suffering through at home.

7 He was moved from a regular education classroom into a 8 special education classroom which served primarily to sort of 9 further stigmatize him. He was put on medication to treat what 10 was identified as attention deficit hyperactivity disorder to 11 try to manage his emotional instability.

12 I think the court can see from his criminal history 13 record that he began to spiral out of control. There was the 14 delinquency finding when he was 13, and then soon after he 15 comes home, when he is around 16 or 17, he gets into some much 16 more serious trouble. While that is an undeniable part of his 17 personal background and it is nothing that he can or wants to 18 turn away from, this also coincides with when he became 19 involved in the drug conspiracy to which he entered a plea of 20 guilty.

21 He is now 24 years old. He has had periods of time
22 when he has managed to live a more, if not entirely, upright 23 life than in his later teen and early twenties. But he is 24 going to be coming out of prison at some point in his life, and 25 he is going to be facing the need to reenter society as a

e5u2tors kjc

1 law-abiding individual.

2                   He has the support of his family members. He has the 3 support of his friends. He has the support of his church and 4 of his larger community. He made the very adult decision at a 5 relatively early stage in this case to enter a plea that he 6 knew carried a sentence of, at a bare minimum, ten years in 7 prison, which is not a small matter for a person who, although 8 he has a meaningful criminal history background, has never 9 served anything like the sort of time that he will be doing in 10 connection with this case.

11                   The government pointed out some of the issues
12 surrounding his conduct in the federal detention facility 13 during the course of this trial. I would like to address that 14 just briefly. The force order to which the government referred 15 in its sentencing memorandum I think was a direct consequence 16 of conflicting information that Samuel was getting as to the 17 interplay between the imposition of a federal sentence and a 18 state sentence; and I think there are other detainees at the 19 MDC who were suggesting that he should be sentenced on the 20 federal case before he would be sentenced on the state case.
21 We ultimately, I think, worked that out and, while there was at 22 least one force order, if not more, that was entered to produce
23 him in state court, that was necessary, not out of a disrespect
24 for the judicial process overall, but I think in part by sort 25 of misguided counsel that he was receiving while he was in the

e5u2tors kjc

1 MDC.

2                   The other incidents that the government has referred 3 to, while not insignificant, this is an adjustment for a person 4 who has never been in federal custody and he was written up for 5 being insolent, which is, again, nothing to be overlooked, but 6 is, I think, attributable in large part to his transition into 7 this stage of his life. I am hopeful that he will be 8 developing the tools to adjust to the adversity that he will be 9 facing during the course of serving the sentence.

10                  There is no question that he will be serving a 11 significant incarceratory sentence on this case. Whether the 12 court sentences him to a guidelines sentence or something below 13 or something above, he is going to be serving no less than a 14 decade in jail. That will serve adequately to protect the 15 public, that will certainly deter Mr. Torres from committing 16 any crimes in the future, and I think it serves to accomplish 17 any general deterrence goals that can be achieved through his 18 sentence.

19                  To the policy arguments I set forth in the sentencing 20 memorandum and I know this court is aware of the impending 21 changes to the guidelines that will likely go into effect with 22 its next iteration, it would have the effect of reducing 23 Mr. Torres's offense level from a 32 to a 30 and would 24 therefore -- he is in criminal history category IV. Instead of 25 151 to 188, he would be facing a guidelines range of 135 to

e5u2tors kjc

1 168. I would ask that this court take that into consideration
2 and also take into consideration the pending Smarter Sentencing 3 Act, which would reduce the mandatory minimum although, 4 obviously, his guidelines range would nonetheless be above, a 5 new lower mandatory minimum for the charge to which he has 6 entered a plea of guilty. But I ask the court take those into 7 consideration in crafting a sufficient but not greater than 8 necessary sentence here.

9 The last, I guess, policy issue that I would like to 10 address has to do with whether the court will sentence him to 11 concurrent or consecutive time on this case in relation to the 12 undischarged state sentence that he is currently serving.

13 Mr. Torres was brought into federal custody pursuant to a writ 14 of habeas corpus ad prosequendum, meaning that he is now under 15 primary state jurisdiction. He has been in custody since March 16 of 2012 and none of that time will be considered attributable 17 toward his federal sentence. If this court, under 18 U.S.C.
18 3584(b), doesn't state on the record that his sentence would be 19 concurrent, he will be sentenced to a consecutive period of 20 incarceration, serving first the 3 to 6 years in state prison 21 and then the undischarged federal sentence.

22 When considering whether or not to impose a sentence
23 consecutively or concurrently, section 3584(b) says the court
24 is to consider those same factors set forth in 3553(a). And I 25 would argue here that the most important 3553(a) factor for the

e5u2tors kjc

1 concurrent or consecutive decision has to do with what is going
2 to -- two things, one, the seriousness of the underlying state 3 offense. I know Mr. Aravind has had a conversation with the 4 ADA in that case. I likewise have spoken with the defense 5 counsel. My understanding is that Judge Conviser, who had the 6 state case, had been planning to sentence Mr. Torres to a 7 lesser term, that he ultimately was going to take the case to 8 trial, and that he unfortunately that he bench warranted 9 shortly before that case was about to go to trial. According 10 to his state court lawyer, the sentence that was ultimately 11 imposed on him had everything to do with his disregard for 12 reappearing in court, which is not an insubstantial factor, but 13 did not have anything to do with the seriousness of the 14 offense; that, in fact, Judge Conviser had treated it the way
15 the legislature had treated that charge, which is it was a 16 misdemeanor that was elevated to a felony solely because 17 Mr. Torres had a prior criminal record. He has already now 18 served more than a full misdemeanor sentence than he would be 19 serving as a full misdemeanor sentence had he been convict of 20 the weapons charge without having criminal history background.
21 In light of that, having served over 13 or nearing 15 months
22 now in the state court charge, I would ask that this court
23 consider imposing this term of incarceration to be served 24 concurrent to that undischarged state period.

25 And on that point, I guess, and in connection with

e5u2tors kjc

1 that, I would point out that previously Mr. Torres has served a 2 term of incarceration in state prison in connection with the 3 two overt acts that were listed in the federal indictment here 4 to distribution of a controlled substance and the possession of 5 a weapon, so I would ask that the court exercise some 6 discretion to consider a sentence below the guidelines in light 7 of the fact that Mr. Torres has already served some time for 8 that relevant conduct.

9 THE COURT: Thank, Ms. Bennett.

10 Mr. Aravind.

11 MR. ARAVIND: Your Honor, I think we have addressed 12 every single one of those issues or points raised by 13 Ms. Bennett in our sentencing memorandum, so I don't want to 14 belabor the point, but this is a serious offense. The 15 defendant was a member of a drug conspiracy that was known to 16 engage in violence. He possessed a firearm -- that's what the 17 parties stipulated to -- as part of that drug conspiracy, and 18 he should be sentenced based on the serious nature of the 19 offense.

20 Turning to the history and the characteristics of this 21 defendant, he has had a remarkable criminal history given his 22 age. He has been committing crimes, serious crimes, since the 23 age of 13, the robbery in the first degree, adjudication that 24 the court was concerned about initially up until very recently, 25 right before his arrest in this case. He has continued to

e5u2tors kjc

1 commit crimes throughout, and the government really believes 2 that a significant term of incarceration, a guidelines term, is 3 important to send a message both for Mr. Torres, that he cannot 4 commit other crimes, but also for general deterrence and to 5 protect the public from this particular defendant.

6 With respect to a couple of the arguments raised by 7 Ms. Bennett, I think that the issue about the concurrent 8 sentence, the government has taken the position that because 9 that is not relevant conduct and because of the serious nature
10 of that offense, that this court should in fact sentence 11 Mr. Torres consecutively to that three- to six-year term that 12 was imposed by Judge Conviser. And we took that position based 13 on the conversations that we had with the assistant district 14 attorney. I understand Ms. Bennett has a different view. She 15 spoke to the defense attorney and they have their view, but our 16 position -- and I have seen a photograph of the homemade weapon 17 that was carried by Mr. Torres during that incident -- is that 18 it was a serious offense and that's why he received or in part 19 why he received a significant sentence. I think this conduct 20 presents a picture of Mr. Torres. I know he has got a 21 difficult background, but he repeatedly turns to criminal 22 activity, repeatedly turns to gun possession, repeatedly turns 23 to weapon possession in order to protect himself, and that 24 needs to stop.

25 Finally, your Honor, it is true that the defendant did

e5u2tors kjc

1 receive some credit, not credit, that certain of his criminal 2 convictions were treated as relevant conduct to the instant 3 offense, and certainly this court could fashion a sentence that 4 takes that into consideration. I would just note that he is 5 receiving the benefit in some ways, that the criminal history 6 category does not reflect that robbery conviction for which he 7 was 13 years old and he has other arrests that have not reached 8 any sort of dispositions.

9 So, taken altogether, given his repeated disregard for 10 the law, given this court's force order, given his inability to 11 adjust in incarceration, I think this court needs to send a 12 message to Mr. Torres that he needs to abide by the law and he 13 needs to spend a significant term of incarceration in jail 14 thinking about it so that when he does get out he will abide by 15 the law.

16 So unless the court has any particular questions, we 17 would rest on our submissions.

18 THE COURT: What was the nature of this homemade 19 weapon?

20 MR. ARAVIND: The photograph that I was shown looked 21 like kind of like a dental scalpel that was attached to 22 something that covered his hand, so it is like a weapon that 23 was protruding from like a glove that was basically fashioned 24 in some way. So that was the type of weapon that he had at the 25 club. The PSR recites the fact that he intended to use that

e5u2tors kjc

1 weapon for self-defense, but it certainly was a weapon that was 2 used to injure somebody. That club was apparently a place that 3 was known where violence had been occurring, and that's the 4 information we were provided.

5 MS. BENNETT: Can I quickly address that?

6 THE COURT: You will get a chance in just a moment.

7 Where would the government place Samuel Torres within 8 the conspiracy in terms of his relative culpability compared to 9 the other defendants?

10 MR. ARAVIND: In terms of simply the charged narcotics 11 conspiracy, because there remains an active murder
12 investigation involving other members of this particular 13 narcotics conspiracy, but just the narcotics conspiracy and 14 weapons possession, I think he is not quite to the level of 15 Mr. Del Valle, who is nicknamed "BD," who sort of ran this 16 crew. But certainly at the next level he is one of the major 17 players. He is someone who was very active and was someone 18 that others in the conspiracy would take direction from. That 19 is the information that we have been able to glean through 20 conversations with cooperating witnesses. So he was certainly 21 not at the top, but he was not at the bottom. I think that we 22 would characterize Mr. Colon's conduct as somewhere near the 23 bottom. I think he is higher than his brother Nelson Torres, 24 but lower than someone like Daniel Del Valle.

25 THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Aravind.

e5u2tors kjc

1                   Ms. Bennett, you wanted to be heard on the weapon 2 issue?

3                   MS. BENNETT: Just on the weapon. My understanding is 4 that there wasn't -- first of all, I think it is undisputed and 5 Mr. Aravind, if he disagrees I am sure will tell us, but that 6 possession of that weapon, whatever it was, was a misdemeanor 7 if Mr. Torres did not have a criminal history record. If he 8 had walked in with no record and had been arrested with that 9 knife, he could not have been charged with more than a 10 misdemeanor. He could not have been sentenced to more than a 11 year for possession of that weapon. He could have had a 12 conviction for tax fraud, and it would have bumped up the -- it 13 would have allowed the state to charge him in an indictment 14 that is a felony. But the only factor that made him subject to 15 a three- to six-year sentence was the fact of any criminal 16 conviction. There is no evidence that he was intending to use 17 it or that he was displaying it or that he was posing a threat 18 to anybody at that time.

19                   The last thing I would say, not on the weapon point 20 but in terms of his role in sort of the hierarchy of this crew, 21 the government could have asked for an aggravating role
22 enhancement, which they didn't, which I think says something 23 about where he fell in terms of offering direction and 24 guidance. They probably know much more than I do about the 25 nature of the overall conspiracy, but he was not charged with

e5u2tors kjc

1 distributing any drugs other than the crack cocaine and the 2 fact that they suggest that he was a member of this conspiracy, 3 but not that he was sort of a director of the conspiracy.

4 THE COURT: Ms. Bennett, does your client wish to 5 address the court before sentence is imposed.

6 MS. BENNETT: He does, your Honor.

7 THE COURT: I will hear from Mr. Torres now.

8 THE DEFENDANT: In addition to what I wrote, your 9 Honor, I would like to apologize to my family and mother that 10 is right there, out there. Even though I am the one that's 11 physically incarcerated at the moment, I know they are 12 suffering as much as I am, which is my fault and I am truly 13 sorry for everything I have done.

14 While me being incarcerated, I'll better my education, 15 and I will make sure I get my GED and take full advantage of 16 any vocational programs available in facilities so that I can 17 be able to take those skills out to society with me.

18 And that's all, your Honor. Thank you for your time 19 and consideration.

20 THE COURT: The defendant, Samuel Torres, comes before 21 this court having pled guilty to a conspiracy to distribute and 22 possess with intent to distribute crack cocaine, a very serious 23 offense against the United States.

24 This court reviewed the presentence report and adopts 25 the findings of fact in the report as my own and will cause the

e5u2tors kjc

1 report to be docketed and filed under seal as part of the 2 record in this case.

3           Turning to the guidelines calculation, the defendant
4 acknowledged being involved in a conspiracy and involvement
5 with more than 280 grams but less than 840 grams of crack
6 cocaine. Under the guidelines, that carries a base offense 7 level of 32. Because Mr. Torres possessed a firearm in 8 connection with the offense, two levels are added.

9           The defendant pled guilty before Magistrate Judge 10 Pitman. I have reviewed the minutes of that plea. I accept 11 Mr. Torres's plea, finding that it is knowing and voluntary; 12 and, accordingly, I grant him a three-level reduction for 13 acceptance of responsibility. So his total offense level is 14 31.

15           This court has reviewed his prior criminal history.
16 This court declines to accord two points for the defendant's 17 first degree robbery conviction at the age of 13. This court 18 scores that as a zero. This court attributes three points to 19 his attempted robbery in the second degree conviction and one 20 point for his criminal mischief charge and three points for his 21 criminal possession of a weapon charge. That yields a criminal 22 history category of IV.

23           MR. ARAVIND: Your Honor, I note that the PSR granted 24 him two points because he committed the instant offense while 25 under a criminal justice sentence. That's at paragraph 65.

e5u2tors kjc

1                   THE COURT: Yes. I missed that.

2                   MR. ARAVIND: As we put in our submission, because the 3 criminal mischief conviction was not reflected at all on the 4 defendant's rap sheet, we stand by the plea agreement which did 5 not have any criminal history category points assigned to that 6 conviction. So then I think he gets -- there are two 7 convictions that are three points each, and the government's 8 view that he gets the two points for while under a criminal 9 justice sentence, so that would give him eight points total, 10 which would be a criminal history category of IV. That's our 11 calculation. I don't know whether Ms. Bennett agrees with that 12 or --

13                  MS. BENNETT: There was an issue with the criminal 14 mischief adjudication because it was a youthful offender and it 15 was a discharge, but I don't necessarily agree with the two 16 points for considering the instant offense while under a 17 criminal justice sentence, the difference between eight points 18 or seven points, which, again, either scenario would put him in 19 category IV. I'm sorry. No. It is the same calculation.

20                  Well, if the court were to adopt either the 21 government's position that it wasn't going to include a 22 criminal mischief conviction because it hadn't been part of the 23 plea agreement or finds that it wasn't counted because it was a 24 youthful offender adjudication without an incarceratory 25 sentence, under either path he would end up with seven criminal

e5u2tors kjc

1 history category points.

2 THE COURT: I am counting it, and it is academic here.
3 I am counting it. For the record, I come to nine criminal 4 history points, which is category IV. And, once again, working 5 backwards, it is two points because the instant offense was 6 committed while he was under a criminal justice sentence; three 7 points for his criminal possession of a weapon on January 5, 8 2012; one point for criminal mischief conviction on November 9 29, 2006; and three points for his attempted robbery conviction
10 on October 15, 2006.

11 So with a criminal history category of IV and a total 12 offense level of 31, the defendant faces a sentence of 151 to 13 188 months under the sentencing guidelines. This court also 14 notes that this crime carries a mandatory minimum sentence of 15 120 months.

16 Turning to the 3553(a) factors, there is a very 17 significant need for deterrence, specifically of Mr. Torres.
18 As counsel have acknowledged and as all the documentation
19 before the court reveals, Mr. Torres spun wildly out of control 20 at the age of 13. I understand that he had a very difficult 21 situation at home. His mother certainly tried to help him. I 22 am sure that that became far more difficult for her to do when 23 he was housed in remote facilities as a juvenile. And I note 24 that just the effort of traveling six or seven hours to some 25 place in upstate New York in order to see her son on the

e5u2tors kjc

1 weekend had to be grueling, and today has to be a very sad day
2 for his family and friends who are here in the courtroom.

3 He is a young man. He needs some very serious
4 socialization. He has got a lot of anger management issues.
5 They started at a very tender age in school, and he must have 6 been a real terror. He got himself involved in very, very 7 serious, dangerous, violent conduct.

8 He is going to be taken out of circulation for a 9 significant period of time, and he needs to be. He needs to 10 get a GED. He needs to learn how to behave as an individual 11 and citizen in a civilized society, and that's not by carrying 12 weapons and assaulting people and selling drugs, which of 13 course, the victims of all of that activity are never in the 14 courtroom, Mr. Torres, but we know they are all out there.

15 This court also recognizes its duty to avoid 16 unwarranted disparities in sentencing and to evaluate this 17 defendant's level of culpability in comparison to others. He 18 is currently serving a significant term of state imprisonment, 19 and it is this court's view, first, that a sentence within the 20 guideline range here is somewhat more than is necessary in this 21 case, given the defendant's age and the fact that he is 22 currently incarcerated on a state sentence. The court also 23 believes, however, that a sentence significantly above the 24 mandatory minimum is necessary here to ensure that Mr. Torres 25 makes the appropriate adjustment into society.

e5u2tors kjc

1                   So, Mr. Torres, I am prepared to sentence you at this 2 time, taking all of these factors into account, and I would ask 3 that you stand.

4                   Mr. Torres, this crime is just part of a terrible 5 downward spiral that you made, that you started at least at the 6 age of 13 and probably before then, and you probably had no 7 idea what kind of a downward spiral you were in, especially 8 with the activity that you were engaged in. You are out of 9 control. You are a danger to the community and to yourself, 10 quite frankly. I sense that you have some potential to be a 11 contributing member of society and to make your mother and 12 those in the courtroom who are weeping for you right now proud 13 of you at some point. But you have got a lot to do to do that.

14                  So it is my judgment that you been sentenced to a term 15 of 142 months of imprisonment to be followed by five years of 16 supervised release subject to all the standard conditions of 17 supervised release and the following special conditions:

18                  First, that you participate in a program approved by 19 your probation office to include testing to determine whether 20 you have reverted to using drugs or alcohol. I authorize the 21 release of available drug treatment evaluations and reports to 22 substance abuse treatment providers as approved by your 23 probation officer. You are required to contribute to the cost 24 of services rendered in an amount to be determined by your 25 probation officer based on your ability to pay or the

e5u2tors kjc

1 availability of third-party payments.

2 I am going to require you also to participate in an 3 alcohol aftercare treatment program under a copayment plan to 4 include testing via breathalyzer at the direction and 5 discretion of your probation officer.

6 I am also going to impose a special condition that you
7 participate in an anger management program upon your release 8 from prison so that we can ensure that your impulses are under 9 control and that they are being addressed by professionals.

10 And, finally, I am going to require you to submit your 11 person, residence, place of business, vehicle, or any other 12 premises under your control to a search on the basis that your 13 probation officer has a reasonable belief that contraband or 14 other evidence of a violation of the conditions of your release
15 may be found. That search can be conducted at a reasonable 16 time and in a reasonable manner, and your failure to submit to 17 such a search may be grounds for revocation. So you are to 18 notify any other residents of the premises where you reside
19 upon your release that those premises may be subject to search 20 pursuant to this condition. I am also going to impose the 21 mandatory $100 special assessment on you, but I am not going to 22 impose a fine because that would be an exercise in futility.

23 You are 20-some years old. You have had no 24 employment. It is about time that you start taking 25 responsibility, beginning in prison, for your life. Because if

e5u2tors kjc

1 there is any repeat of this kind of conduct, you will be 2 throwing your whole life away and it is all going to be up to 3 you.

4 So this, Mr. Torres, constitutes the sentence of this 5 court.

6 I advise you that, to the extent you have not 7 previously waived your right to appeal, you have the right to 8 appeal. I advise you further that if you cannot afford 9 counsel, counsel will be provided to you free of court.

10 Ms. Bennett has done an admirable job representing you in 11 connection with this matter and addressed some thorny legal 12 questions, arcane questions involving the guidelines, to your 13 benefit. So I am confident that she will advise you further 14 with respect to your appellate rights. You may be seated, sir.

15 Are there any further applications from the 16 government?

17 MR. ARAVIND: Your Honor, we would move to dismiss the 18 open counts as well as underlying indictments.

19 THE COURT: The government's application is granted.

20 Are there any further applications on behalf of the 21 defendant?

22 MS. BENNETT: Your Honor, I would, as I asked earlier, 23 ask the court to impose the sentence concurrent to any 24 undischarged --

25 THE COURT: Yes. Thank you for reminding me. I am

e5u2tors kjc

1 imposing this sentence concurrent to the undischarged term of 2 imprisonment in his state sentence.

3 MS. BENNETT: Thank you, your Honor.

4 And I guess the only other application would be a 5 recommendation to the Bureau of Prisons when he comes into 6 federal custody to place him at facility that will 7 facilitate -- allow his family to visit him.

8 THE COURT: I will include a recommendation that he be 9 housed at facility as close to the New York metropolitan area 10 as possible.

11 MS. BENNETT: Thank you, your Honor.

12 THE COURT: All right.

13 Mr. Torres, you are going to spend a considerable time 14 in prison. It will be up to you whether you make it a 15 constructive exercise and you truly decide to hit the reset 16 button in your life. But I will tell you that upon your 17 release from prison some years from now, please don't put 18 yourself in the position of coming back before me for a 19 violation of supervised release, because I will be very 20 familiar with the record and if you violate supervised release, 21 you will not be keeping faith with the justice system and I 22 will do what I believe is right at that time.

23 Do you understand?

24 THE DEFENDANT: Yes, your Honor.

25 THE COURT: All right. This matter is concluded.

MR. ARAVIND: Thank you, Judge.
